

Dr. Yeshvant Navalgund, M.D., appointed as Director of Physician Education

National Spine and Pain Centers Taps Respected Physician and Educator to Lead Professional Training Curriculum

Pittsburgh, PA and Rockville, MD – July 21, 2021 -- National Spine and Pain Centers (NSPC), a network of medical practices and affiliated physicians specializing in the treatment of spinal and chronic pain, has announced today that Dr. Yeshvant Navalgund will join the company as Director of Physician Education on September 1, 2021.

Dr. Navalgund is a practicing physician, surgeon educator, and consulting expert who serves as President of the Pennsylvania Pain Society and Medical Director and Board Member of National Bioskills Laboratories, and is a Founding Member of the American Society of Regional Anesthesia Special Interests Group in Pain Management. Before accepting his new position with National Spine and Pain Centers, he was Assistant Professor at West Virginia University School of Medicine and Assistant Professor for Research, Rockefeller Neuroscience Institute, West Virginia University, and founder of DNA Advanced Pain Treatment Centers, one of the highest rated specialty pain practices in Southwestern Pennsylvania.

Mark H. Coleman, M.D., Clinical President of NSPC says, “Dr. Yesh brings significant experience in cadaver-based physician training to his new role. He’s a widely-known and highly-respected educator who can distill complex information into concise trainings. He’s got the ideal mix of practical expertise combined with effective hands-on teaching techniques which means he can get physicians up to speed quickly and operating at their maximum skill level.”

In his new role, Dr. Navalgund will be developing a new, leading-edge professional education curriculum for NSPC’s network of more than 150 chronic pain physicians. His program will be designed to equip all of NSPC’s providers to meet the challenges of new and innovative treatment for chronic pain, positioning NSPC at the forefront of modern pain management.

“As the practice of pain management gets more complex and technology continues to evolve, it’s more important than ever that care providers have access to the newest techniques and treatments. NSPC is investing in their physicians so that they can bring the best options to their patients for the best medical outcomes and quality of life,” says Dr. Navalgund.

About Dr. Yeshvant Navalgund, M.D.

Dr. Yeshvant Navalgund, M.D., is a practicing physician, surgeon educator, and consulting expert who delivers clarity in complex medical matters to a wide range of information-seekers. In addition to his role as Director of Physician Education at National Spine and Pain Centers, he serves as President of the Pennsylvania Pain Society and Medical Director & Board, National Bioskills Laboratories. Dr. Navalgund is also a Founding Member of the American Society of Regional Anesthesia Special Interests Group in Pain Management. Before accepting his new position with National Spine and Pain Centers, he was Assistant Professor at West Virginia University School of Medicine and Assistant Professor for Research, Rockefeller Neuroscience Institute, West Virginia University, and founder of DNA Advanced Pain Treatment Centers, the most successful and highly rated pain practice in Southwestern Pennsylvania.

Dr. Navalgund is a highly sought-after speaker, trainer, and medical expert who draws on decades of experience advising patients, educating surgeons, and supporting legal and technical teams. He speaks on a broad range of issues across healthcare, cutting through the chaos of too-much-information to facilitate confident decision making by his audiences. An experienced consultant, his accessible guidance is highly sought-after in both academic and professional environments across the fields of healthcare, law, and technology. More information can be found at: www.DrYeshMD.com